The 20th Annual Hispanic and Lusophone Studies Symposium

This year, the graduate student symposium will explore the role of power and various social, political, legal, economic and historic institutions in shaping constructions of gender and sexuality in Luso-Hispanic contexts. We seek papers that address these issues in a wide range of historical periods and academic disciplines: Latinx, Latin American, Lusophone and Iberian studies. Possible themes include, but are not limited to: queer/cuir identity and representation, sexuality/sexualities, masculinities, feminism, gendered violence, gender and politics, performance/performativity, gay/queer television or film, intersections of gender/race/class and gendered societal institutions (marriage, heterosexuality, etc).

Submission Deadline: Friday, February 3, 2017

We welcome presentations in Portuguese, Spanish and English. Please submit 250 word abstracts, a title and short biography to symposium\_sppo@osu.edu.

Conference fee is $30 for Graduate Students, $45 for Faculty.

Early registration (by March 10) is $25 for Graduate Students, $40 for Faculty.
