

From Codex Espangliensis, used with the permission of Moving Parts Press

The 19th Annual Hispanic & Lusophone Studies Symposium:

~Dimensions of Violence in Luso-Hispanic contexts~

Submission deadline:
Friday January 15, 2016

Columbus, OH April
15-16, 2016

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Brian Gollnick, University of Iowa
Round table: TBA

This year, the graduate student symposium will explore the distinct literary and cultural manifestations of violence in Luso-Hispanic contexts such as Latina/o, Latin American, and Iberian studies across a wide range of historical periods and academic disciplines. Possible themes include but are not limited to: torture, state violence, terrorism, violence in relation to gender, racial macro and micro-agressions, economic, social and cultural oppression, trauma and memory, etc. We strive to deepen our understanding of historical changes and contexts that shape particular violent episodes as well as common threads that may unite them across geographic and temporal divisions.

Submission of paper proposals and panels: symposium_sppo@osu.edu

We welcome presentations in Portuguese, Spanish, and English
- 250 word limit for proposals
- Include title and short biography

For a preview of the future debate, please take a look to our speakers videos in our web page

Find more information at:
<https://sppo.osu.edu/annual-symposium>